„Nomen est omen”, the name is a portent, a foreboding and more than just that.

The Sex Machines Museum is really the first museum in the world devoted to sexual gadgets. For the summer season of 2004 it has undergone a complete make-over: new space, new image and a much greater number of objects on display.

Red “lipstick” on the walls, a reconstruction of the old cinema, where historical erotic films are screened, a room with toys for adults, antique stimulation apparatuses, a room devoted to “extravagances” ... disturbing and tempting installations of more than 200 objects displayed on an area of three floors in a historical building from the 17th century in the centre of Prague.

This collection of objects from all over the world is a product of profound research, started many years ago by its owner Oriano Bizzochi, originally intended for the Museum of curiosities in the San Marino republic. The collection’s aim is to take the visitor on an ironic, intelligent excursion of the curiosities, history and perversions accompanying human sexual stimulation.

The erotic, dreamy dimension, so rarely expressed, becomes real and speaks for itself, when one sees the 600 m<sup>2</sup> museum area of displays showing antiquated anti-masturbation apparatuses, with corsets and discouraging pelvis constrictors or eccentric historical condoms.

The key to understanding the Sex Machines Museum is also in having fun and wondering on the effect of seeing sadomasochistic gadgets, artificial limbs and a whole number of patented, yet never construed apparatuses and objects. All this makes one think how man has struggled since ancient times to invent and build sexual aids serving to increase sexual pleasure with creativity and imagination.
